“ To lose a mother is to lose a piece of your heart. Many of us know all too well this grief. It does not matter how young or how old, a special bond is forever broken. In your case, I am sure that your mother inched away from you a small piece at a time for a long while - and this made everything more difficult. I sincerely hope that you can find some solace and comfort in pleasant memories from happier times spent with her.

“ To my sweet Nanny,

I won't be able to make it for your showing as I'm across the world... but we both know we share something that goes further than that. While the woman I knew as you left us a long time ago due to illness, it is still sad to see the final end to your life. I hope that wherever you are now that it is perfect and that someday, we'll meet up there. Love your granddaughter, Kristin
