“ Carl was truly a gentle man, and always considerate and thoughtful of others. There are MANY examples of Carl's silent generosity. Perhaps the one that I treasure most was his becoming a silent, unknown Santa to a young, blind boy who, the day after Christmas (many, many years ago) happened to reply to Carl's question, "How did Santa treat you?", "Well, I guess that Santa wasn't able to get the Lionel train set that I had asked for". Carl immediately bought the train set, brought it back to the store where we elegantly wrapped it, and then, very carefully so that NO one would know the "who" or "how", had it delivered with the short message, "Santa apologizes. He found it still on the sleigh when he got back to the North Pole".
