“ When I was a little girl, I was shy around my mother's tall, handsome brother Jerry. With his deep voice and the way he would squint his eyes and tilt his head when I spoke to him, I just knew he had a good bs detector. It was intimidating. Because he did have a good bs detector. Over time I realized my tough uncle was a sweetie and I cherish my memories of family holidays we all spent together. When I think of Jerry I will think of the U.S. Marines; Johnny Cash songs (esp Folsom Prison Blues); our love for his dad, my beloved grandpa; Jerry reading the newspaper having a good laugh over something there; cigars and construction sites. I will miss you, Uncle. May God keep you in his care and comfort your loving family. With much love, Pammy
