He spent his life with his family and enjoying his children and grandchildren. There were many adventures, stories and he had the time to help us and guide us through life. He was an amazing storyteller with a wonderful imagination. He always made us laugh. Our summers in Lake George were some of the best. Although time, age and distance took away friends, he was loved by them all. My father was loved and admired more than words can ever express. He was an incredible man.

“ One year ago, we lost a beautiful light in our life, be we remember him daily and love and miss him always. This is just to light a candle for our Baba the Great. I miss you and I love you... always.

“ Human relationships often entail a variety of rights and responsibilities. Interestingly, however, nobody is entitled to become an accepted member of one of the world?s greatest families. That is a privilege that should not be taken for granted. When the family consists of members such as ?Baba the Great?, the honor is only compounded.

Thank you Mr. Nissan for allowing me to be a member of your remarkable family and a part of your incredible life. I couldn?t forget you, your words, or kind face even if I tried. Until we meet again Baba, Godspeed.

“ I had a great childhood. My father saw everything through my childlike eyes and so he saw the world with a child's love and fascination. He loved playing and sharing everything with me - because above all he loved and adored his family. Growing up I always felt his love and as I grew older, his respect. He praised and admired any achievement - no matter how small or trivial - he was always there. I will miss him forever.

“ Baba was the best grandfather anyone could ask for. When I returned home on Sunday, it was so hard, I finally had to stop and know that he is gone until we can reunite. He was the best man I ever knew and I love him with all my heart. Always Will.

“ My dad taught me everything a person needs to know. Love was top on that list. He taught me how to laugh. He taught me to be tolerant. He was the best father anyone could ever hope to have. I miss him and selfishly cry because I don't have him any longer.
