“ Bobby will always be remembered as our star athlete at Plainview High School with his Mom and Dad at every game. I will always remember all the fun times at the DeSimone home during junior high and high school and his mom making sandwiches and singing Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head. Hope your memories bring you peace and comfort in the days ahead.

“ One of the multitude of memories is a general attribute of Robert's. He was as compassionate as he was confrontive; and in his confrontation he could apply compassion. A gift of his, for me, was to see possibility especially when I could not see my accountability. And all this is being exchanged without judgement and a powerful listening to support me, even when I could not or would not. He gave me the room to look neutrally at a situation or myself, and sometimes these were one and the same. The flip side was his willingness to see the same for himself. On a number of occasions, after a difficult incident, he would ask how it went, asking for observations or feedback. Most often he could see or hear what was being offered. And in his humanity, he humbly would reveal his difficulty to see a possibility, but would always try to remain open. I love him very much for the vulnerability he would share, and his unwavering support of me and all that matters to me. He serves as an inspiration for many attributes that can make us all a little more humble and thankful, even though we all have a demon or two that persist.
